Then and now. Jessica Cain was arrested back in April on drug charges and again this past weekend.

SALEM - A Manchester woman was arrested after she told police she had ash blown in her eyes and couldn't see the road.

Jessica Cain, 34, of Manchester was arrested and charged by Salem police on six counts of possession of a controlled drug, transporting drugs in a motor vehicle and breach of bail.

Early Sunday morning, a Salem police officer performed a motor vehicle stop after witnessing a vehicle driving erratically on Interstate 93 northbound near exit 1.

Once the officer approached the operator, later identified as Cain, she told him that she had ash blown into her eyes and she was having trouble seeing the road.

As they spoke, the officer noticed signs of narcotics use in the vehicle, numerous glass pipes typically used to smoke crack cocaine, numerous prescription pills which were identified as Subutex, Buprenorphine, orange films identified as Suboxone, some crack cocaine, and a loaded 9 mm handgun.

As she was being arrested, Cain disclosed to police she had 20 grams of heroin hidden on her body.

At the time of the arrest, Cain was out on bail on the sale of a controlled drug in Merrimack.
