MANCHESTER- How many times does a Manchester man need to be stunned with a Taser to comply? Two.

On Tuesday morning, Dominic Nutting, 23, of Manchester was arrested and charged by Manchester police with disobeying a police officer and resisting arrest/detention.

Around midnight, Manchester police saw a car driving through a red traffic light at Mammoth Road and Hanover Street. The driver did not pull over when police turned on their emergency lights.

The car drove to a residence on Salisbury Street where Nutting exited the vehicle. The officer then told Nutting he was under arrest and attempted to grab his arm, and when Nutting didn't comply, the officer stunned Nutting with a Taser for the first time.

The Taser had little effect on Nutting and the officer attempted to arrest Nutting again, which resulted in the officer stunning him with a Taser second time.

It was then that the officer was able to arrest Nutting.

He is scheduled to appear in the 9th Circuit Court-Manchester on June 19.
